A higher form of fishing

SUINDÁ LODGE

ITATÍ, CORRIENTES, ARGENTINA

Suindá is a Dorado angler's dream, strategically located near the town of Itatí, in the province of Corrientes.

SUINDÁ LODGE

Chase freshwater's grandest slam

Perfectly placed in the heart of Argentina's best dorado fishing, Suindá Lodge sits high on the riverbank of the clear upper part of the Paraná River. The region houses one of the most productive sections on the Upper Paraná River, a clear-water fishery that consistently kicks out good numbers of large Dorado. Its secret lies in its structure: generally fast-flowing runs, coursing over beautiful rock gardens.

Our beautiful jungle lodge serves as a central hub and resting place for anglers on the prowl for the giant Golden Dorado that live in these waters. Whether crashing Sabalo on sand flats or cruising the jungle lined banks, these fish are smart, tricky, moody and sensitive, making for some of the most technical, yet rewarding fishing out there.

LOCATION

Suindá is located on the southern bank (Argentina side) of the Paraná River, which is the borderline between Argentina and Paraguay. The Lodge is closest to the river town of Itatí found in the Corrientes Region. This section of the Paraná flows clear along beautiful fishy banks, sandbars, rocks and islands that create deltas and smaller “riachos” (streams).

Stilted living quarters are perched on a high bluff and sit nine feet above the ground, offering soaring views of the sprawling river and its natural surroundings. Wooden footbridges conveniently connect each room to the main dining hall. From there, it’s a short walk to the water, where you’ll spend your days exploring the Paraná’s most productive, structure rich sections for monster Dorado.

GETTING THERE

Daily flights are available from Buenos Aires Aeroparque Domestic Airport (AEP) to Corrientes (CNQ) or Resistencia (RES). Either flight you choose is a non-stop one hour flight. From (CNQ) Corrientes. From (RES) Resistencia, the drive is 1hr and 45min.

FROM CORRIENTES (CNQ): 45min drive to the water's edge where a boat will take you the short hop to the lodge.

FROM RESISTENCIA (RES): 2 hours' drive.

The sandbars are where the true excitement lies. When the conditions are right, colossal dorado hunt sabalo baitfish that seasonally congregate in big schools, resulting in massive boiling feeding frenzies in knee-deep water.

THE FISHING

Fishing at Suindá takes place on the upper Paraná River. The “Río Paraná” is the second longest river in South America, next to the sprawling Amazon. We fish a clear-flowing stretch of water where the river borders Paraguay, flanked by jungle expanses on both its edges. You’ll explore this dynamic fishery on 21-foot boats which have been specifically designed for two anglers to fish simultaneously. After the engines are cut, you’ll drift the structure-rich shorelines of the Río Paraná, casting to sunken logs, in and around boulders, and across clear sandbars. We mostly fish streamers on floating lines, which makes for explosive visual takes.

Paraná River Dorado average 5 to 20 pounds, but there are also fish pushing 30+ pounds. When the conditions align, you'll wade clear sandbars where sabalo baitfish school up in shallow waters. This is the ultimate sight-fishing experience, where landing monsters is a real possibility. As the sun sets on the horizon, you might find yourself swinging big flies through productive mid-river rock gardens. The hard takes on the swing are unforgettable.

In addition to Golden Dorado, we also target Pirá Pitá on light tackle (6 and 7-weight rods). This species is pound for pound one of the stronger fish we catch on big dries and smaller mouse patterns. Our Pirá Pitá average 2 to 10 pounds. Pacú also abound here, and we typically sight-cast for them with "fruit" flies. They also take on the surface, and range from 5 to 15 pounds (heavier, if you're lucky). At Suindá we don't trailer boats. They will be waiting for you at the dock, gassed up and ready to go, every morning.

DAILY ITINERARY

Every day at Suindá begins with a fresh, hot breakfast prepared from local ingredients and eggs from our lodge's chickens. Following lunch, you'll head down to our newly constructed dock to meet your guides for the mornings fishing, a short 30m walk from the front porch of the lodge. Typically we launch early in the morning, usually around 6:30 AM, but that can vary depending on conditions.

After spending the morning on the water pursuing Dorado, Pacú, and Pira Pítá, you will return to the lodge for lunch prepared by our head chef. The midday heat is the perfect opportunity to take a dip in our pool with a cold beer in hand or to take a siesta to prepare for the evening's adventures. Around 4:30 PM, your guides will be ready and waiting at the dock to head out, typically returning shortly after dark for dinner. While you're exploring the Paraná, our chef will be preparing dinner, typically over the open fire. After you return to your rooms and freshen up, dinner will be served followed by drinks at the bar where the day's fishing stories will be shared and lauded.

Double-digit Dorado are a possibility all season long.
